VALUE OF PUBLICITY.

Stove Brodie, the Bridge Jumper, as a Self Advertiser.

Curiously enough, the man who, in my opinion, had the keenest intuition of the value of publicity and used it to the greatest personal advantage, when we consider his humble beginnings and the limited sphere of his endeavor, never really knew how to read and write. I knew him first as a young street urchin, making his living by edge of what Park row calls "news values," which one finds in every trained and efficient city editor.

It was on the strength of this knowledge that this bootblack went one day to a well known wholesale liquor dealer on the east side and proposed that he macy, or Rickert & Wells. should establish him in a saloon on lower Bowery. The liquor dealer was HUMMEL REFUSED $5 aghast at his presumption until he learned his scheme; then he capitulated at once, and within a few days the papers had been signed and twenty-four Lawyer Walked Out of The Penitenhours' option secured on rickety and. from nearly every imaginable point of view, undesirable premises near Canal street and directly under the noisiest and dustiest and oiliest part of the elevated railroad. This done, the bootblack made his way to the very center of the Brooklyn bridge, climbed bastily to the top of the parapet and, heedless of the warning shouts of the borrified onlookers and the swift rush of a panting cop, dropped into the seething waters below. It was an unknown youth with ar earning capacity of a few dollars a week who disapneared beneath the surface of the East river, but it was an enterprising young man, an east side celebrity, in fact, all ready for the disured income and possible fortune in rest for the south of France, his grasp, whose nose resppeared very shortly above the muddy surface of the water and who was helped by willing and officious hands into a rowboat, where dry clothing awaited him, together with hearty congratulations on had attempted to jump the bridge, had incarceration. He passed it in the nes-escaped with his life. The next day pital ward, sitting beside his cot read-the name of Stave Brodle was flashed ing a copy of Goethe's poems. Hummel

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-o is Used.

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis Are Caused by Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The rhenmatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for rheumatism, and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of heumatism. They may relieve it in one quarter, but it is sure to break out ter, after about sisteen years of uncomewhere else. The only true way to cure rheumatism is to drive it from the has succeeded in getting a bill through permanent cure for rheumatism come It seeks out the rheumatic poison in he blood, museles and kidneys, renders mert and harmless and drives it out of the system. Entering the driveway leading to her home, she was struck on the shoulder by what was evidently the spent ball from some bunter's rifle. The bullet was a 22 calibre and came with such force that the woman was nearly thrown. It glane ed off from her shoulder and struck the ground. Mrs. Marshall's shoulder was bruised and burned and a hole burned in her coat. She was pushing a baby carriage containing her few months old baby, and feels that the accident resulted very fortunately as the child was unhurt and she received only slight injuries.

SEA AND LAND.

Finally Harmonize.

In "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," translated from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlof by Velma Swanston Howard, is the following pretty description of how sea and land meet;

You see that sea and hand can meet in many different ways. In many places the land comes down toward the sea with flat, tufted mendows, and the sea meets the land with flying sand, which plies up in mounds and drifts. It appears as though they both disilked each other so much that they only wished to show the poorest they possessed. But it can also happen that when the land comes toward the sen it raises a wall of hills in front of it, as though the sea were something dangerous. When the land does this engineer only five hydrants have been dangerous. When the land does this, found frozen in Rutland during the past the sen comes up to it with flery wrath

But in Blekinge it is altogether different when sea and laud meet. There t is designed and prepared to cure theu-natism and rheumatism only. It is composed of perfect antidotes for the becomes of perfect antidotes for the heumatic acid recison in the system. Mary of the Cauren of the Holy Inno-vides itself into flords and bays and sounds, and it is perhaps this which makes it look as if they must meet in > distely overpowers, tears away everything green and makes it as gray as Itself. Then it meets still another obstacle. With this it does the same thing. And still another-yes, the same thing happens to this also. It is stripped and plundered as if it had fallen into robbers' hands. Then the obstacles come nearer and nearer together, and then the sea must understand that the land sends toward it her littlest children in order to move it to pity. It also becomes more friendly the farther in it comes, rolls its waves less high, moderates its storms, lets the green things stay in cracks and crevices, separates itself into small sounds and inlets and becomes at last so harmless in the land that little boats dare venture out upon it. It certainly cannot recognize itself, so mild and friendly has it grown,

A Distinction Without a Difference. Five-year-old Deborah had been invited to take luncheon at a restaurant with Miss K.

"Do you like cocoa?" she was asked. When the answer was "Yes," the beverage was duly brought, but remained untasted.

At last Miss K. said, "Why don't you drink your cocoa, Deborah, when you said you wanted it?" "I didn't say I wanted it," replied the child politely, g"I only said that I liked it."—Woman's Home Companion.
